

Review of: "[Mini Review] Role of Mango in Immune System"

Oleksandra Abrat<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Vasyl Stefanyk Precarpathian National University

Potential competing interests: In my opinion, the article is more like a popular science article than a scientific one. The manuscript contains many expressions that are not scientific, including recipes. In addition, the authors provide very little clear experimental data showing the effect of individual mango components on the immune system. This point needs to be significantly expanded, otherwise the stated title of the article does not correspond to the textual content. I would not recommend publishing such a manuscript as a scientific mini-review.

In my opinion, the article is more like a popular science article than a scientific one. The manuscript contains many expressions that are not scientific, including recipes. In addition, the authors provide very little clear experimental data showing the effect of individual mango components on the immune system. This point needs to be significantly expanded; otherwise, the stated title of the article does not correspond to the textual content. I would not recommend publishing such a manuscript as a scientific mini-review.