

Review of: "Digital Literacy in People with Disabilities: An Overview and Narrative Review"

Mónica Viñarás-Abad¹

¹ Universidad Complutense de Madrid

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

It is an original and much-needed article, due to the impact of technology on the daily lives of people with disabilities. This development can either improve their lives or hinder them.

The review by the authors is very appropriate and allows us to offer a very current x-ray of this situation.

It presents food for thought and invites action.

Although there are works on very specific aspects that could be included (employment and disability, Sánchez-Valle et al.), in general, it is a very interesting and from now on, an essential work.