

Review of: "Developing and Supporting High-Performing Faculty Teams in Engineering Institutions"

Kamalaveni M.s.¹

¹ Sona College of Technology

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This paper focusses on the current scenario in engineering institutions which is highly demanding. The title of the paper and the content are not synchronized. No specific research question is there, it all a generalized one. Recent studies and its findings can be included because the entire scenario is totally different after pandemic and hence it can be included to study the recent trends. The paper should be more analytical ,only weigted average is done, other research tools can be used. Since the topic is very complex, a holistic approach is required and the paper needs to be revised.