Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Your work addresses a crucial aspect of economic development in Africa, focusing on the role of MSMEs. The study's objective, methodology, and findings are commendable, but I believe there are areas that require attention before the paper can be considered for publication. I recommend major revisions as outlined below:

Clarity and Structure: The paper would benefit from a more defined structure, with clear sections for introduction, literature review, methodology, results, discussion, and conclusion. This will enhance the flow of the narrative and make it easier for readers to follow your argument.

Theoretical Framework and Literature Review: While the study effectively establishes the importance of MSMEs in economic development, the theoretical framework and literature review could be further developed. Consider incorporating more recent and diverse sources to provide a comprehensive overview of the subject.

Methodology: It would be beneficial to provide more detail on the survey design, data collection process, and sampling methodology. Additionally, consider discussing any potential limitations or biases that may have influenced the findings.

Data Analysis: The regression analysis results are a significant contribution to the study. However, providing additional context on the statistical techniques used and discussing any assumptions made during the analysis would enhance the paper's rigor.

Discussion: Expand on the implications of your findings for policymakers, practitioners, and researchers. How can the identified determinants be practically applied to support MSMEs in Africa? Are there any policy recommendations that emerge from your study?

Recommendations for Improvement: While the recommendation to the concerned bodies is a valuable addition, consider providing specific, actionable steps that policymakers and stakeholders can take to address the identified determinants.

In-text Citations and References: Ensure that all in-text citations correspond to entries in the reference list and vice versa. Consistency in citation style is crucial for the paper's academic integrity.

Overall, your research makes a significant contribution to the understanding of MSMEs' sustainable development in Africa.
