Definitions

Potential competing interest

Defined by Robert West

A report that provides information about a person's potential competing interest .

Curator note: This is not the same as a competing interest or a potentially competing interest. It is the means by which these are communication.

Elaboration: Good practice involves being as inclusive as possible to ensure full transparency and include both financial and non-financial attributes that might conceivably influence the conduct, reporting or evaluation of research whether or not it actually does so.
