The article should have more references with updated ones. There are very few references and therefore lack academic rigour. There is too much emphasis on the university -only essential details should be provided with reference to the article. The choice of using the university should however be well motivated. The research paper should also be well structured with clearly defined sections. The methodology should be beefed up as does not seem to have a clear section. The methodology should be strong and discussions should be on specific themes and should be related to research questions and research objectives
