Thank you for entrusting me with the opportunity to review your article. Your well-structured piece highlights the paramount importance of security and safety within healthcare facility design, providing invaluable insights and actionable recommendations to foster safer environments.

In light of your article's content, I would like to suggest a few enhancements: Firstly, it would be beneficial to delve deeper into how security and safety features can either enhance or detract from the overall patient experience. Additionally, offering practical implementation tips and comprehensive checklists for healthcare facility administrators and design teams to effectively integrate security and safety measures into their projects would be of great value. Lastly, if applicable, connecting your article to recent events or advancements in healthcare facility design and security could further enhance its relevance and impact.
