Review of: "The Complexity of Leaving No One Behind: Unmasking and Emphasizing Multiple and Intersectional Marginalisation in India"

Abigail O. Kusimo

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

An excellent subject of study is presented in the paper titled "The Complexity of Leaving No One Behind: Unmasking and Emphasizing Multiple and Intersectional Marginalization in India" This choice of topic is particularly pertinent within the context of contemporary emphasis on inclusivity and sustainable development. Nevertheless, there are some areas that require improvement in this manuscript.

Firstly, there appears to be a deficiency in the quantity of collected data presented by the authors. Additionally, the explication of the findings is not adequately thorough, which diminishes the clarity of the research outcomes. It is recommended that the conclusions drawn should be derived directly from the substantive content of the paper, reinforcing the connection between the body of the work and its ultimate implications. Furthermore, the article should include pertinent recommendations to enhance its practical applicability.

In a comprehensive assessment, this work demonstrates promising potential, provided that the indicated revisions are addressed meticulously. It would also benefit from a more comprehensive review of existing literature to solidify its theoretical foundation.