

Review of: "Financial Autonomy: Panacea for Improved Service Delivery in Imo State Local Government System"

Andy Dwi Bayu Bawono<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Universitas Muhammadiyah Surakarta

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This article effectively examines the necessity of financial autonomy in order to enhance the delivery of services in the local government of Imo State, Nigeria. This article also presents data derived from literature as well as input from stakeholders.

Nevertheless, there are other actions that need to be undertaken to enhance this article:

1. The paper requires a more extensive literature analysis, particularly from reputable journal articles, to substantiate the significance of this research and provide background information on the benefits of financial autonomy for Imo State Local Government. Literature evaluations offer insights into the implementation of financial autonomy in many nations, highlighting comparable practices that support the premise of Imo State Local Government's need to adopt financial autonomy.
2. According to the methodology, this work incorporates materials derived from the author's own experience. However, it is unwise to rely on personal experiences as evidence in a research study unless we are acknowledged experts on the issue. It is preferable to seek external evidence to corroborate our knowledge or personal experiences.
3. The article is intended to describe the process of data analysis for all the resources listed in the approach. For example, the author can present the step-by-step procedure for analyzing data obtained from interviews until reaching a conclusive result.
4. Discussion should further elaborate on the data analysis of existing literature and interviews with stakeholders that have already been produced. This will enhance the richness and informativeness of the discussion.