

Review of: "Mapping the Canadian Research Landscape in 2023"

Antonio Pelaez-Verdet¹

¹ Universidad de Málaga

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Despite being well structured and easy to read, the paper lacks several issues that need to be improved in order to be properly considered for publication. First, references should be provided so the readers could know how far and how this item has been researched. Secondly, the documents used have been selected in a way that should be properly explained, by providing an accurate methodology that is missing. Thirdly, and most importantly, the analysis performed seems pretty much like an exploratory, preliminary study, rather than a conclusive method. Ideally, the authors should have focused on previous authors and methods to advance in this field and overcome the "So what" question.