

Review of "Peer-Reviewed Publishing"

Fabio Cumbo¹

¹ University of Trento

Here the problem is that your definition is not a definition. People could agree or not with you on what you wrote, but this is your pure personal opinion (have a look at the sentence "[...] I believe most do it for [...]"). A definition must indeed be an objective and impartial explanation of a specific concept (this is not my personal opinion, it is the definition of the concept of definition).