

Review of: "Digital Literacy in People with Disabilities: An Overview and Narrative Review"

Samantha Newell¹

¹ University of Adelaide

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

When discussing the digital divide, perhaps you should reference UNESCO's Sustainable Development Goals, especially in terms of Sustainable Development Goal 4: Quality Education. This specifically speaks to the digital divide, and general areas of equity and access.

I would also suggest framing some of this in terms of the Universal Design for Learning guidelines (UDL: <https://udlguidelines.cast.org/>) as these are influential in terms of access to education and equity for digital access.