

Review of: "Teaching Method Preference by College Teachers in India"

Venera Mihaela Cojocariu<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> University of Bacau

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The effort to improve the manuscript is visible. Some of our suggestions have been worked on, congratulations. However, on the following I did not notice the same thing:

1. The Literature review dimension must be developed, consolidated and elaborated seriously, with the current pedagogical literature on the topic;
2. In fact, in reality, there is NO literature review part in the work except as a title, because there are no theoretical perspectives on the topic addressed;
3. It would be useful for the study to benefit from a set of research objectives attached to the hypothesis. Once the objectives are formulated, the results can be analyzed and discussed by referring to them;
4. The bibliography should be improved quantitatively and qualitatively, a number of 6 titles is much reduced compared to the theoretical substantiation required;
5. We suggest that the titles proposed in the bibliography be used explicitly in the text by making the corresponding bibliographic references obvious and correct (including in the theoretical foundation and conclusions).

We hope you will continue to improve this manuscript. Success!