E waste recycling is a very important and meaningful topic. The author's view point is interesting. However, only descriptive statistics is not enough to give the conclusions, there are There are more hypothesis tests that can be done here.

The more deep analysis should be taken in the future, for example, what should do if there are difference between female and male on recycling behavior, what opportunities would bring the gender's difference of disposal behavior?

The overall analysis of the paper is too simple.
