Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article explores a little-known fruit in the Malaysian-Indonesian islands, emphasizing its potential medical applications. While focused on Rubus fraxinifolius, related species are widespread, challenging its rarity. The author's insights into its potential as a food or medicinal source warrant further exploration. Suggestions include a detailed nutritional table for clarity and comprehensive taxonomy data early in the article. Recommending publication post-revisions.
