Review of: "Responsible Geosciences, or Geoscience Literacy for Urbanites"

Teodoro Georgiadis

1 Italian National Research Council

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I really like this paper. Written in a simple, but articulated, way it allows to immediately grasp the main features of the interactions between hearthlings and the urban environment.

I also appreciated the wide view utilised in the article in describing the complexity of the urban approach and the necessity to put on field a large variety of competencies. For the manuscript it results very clearly. It is also very clear the concept 'from a system of material vs intangible attributes' that is very open minded.

Eradicating geo-ignorance as an active challenge is surely a challenging proposal,