Qeios

Peer Review

Review of: "Unlocking Success in NGOs: The Power of Servant Leadership"

Jessica Abou Mrad[1]

1. Modern University for Business and Science, Beirut, Lebanon

This article addresses a relevant and timely topic by examining how servant leadership can contribute to the success of NGOs. The manuscript is clearly structured, and the discussion highlights the importance of trust, employee empowerment, collaboration, and mission-driven leadership in nonprofit organizations. The topic has both academic and practical value. However, the authors could strengthen the paper by clarifying the research contribution, providing more detail on the methodology, and expanding the discussion of the study's limitations and practical implications. Overall, the article is promising and would benefit from minor revisions before publication.

Declarations

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

doi.org/10.32388/4SBFLF