

Review of: "Prevalence of Buruli Ulcer Among Residents in Jasikan Municipality: A Cross-Sectional Study"

Rizwan Ali¹

¹ University of Science and Technology of China

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The study makes a valuable contribution to the understanding of Buruli ulcer prevalence, particularly in the mentioned geographic region. The strengths lie in its clear objectives, robust methodology, and effective use of comparative analysis. However, the study could be strengthened by diversifying its methods, considering potential sampling biases, and exploring temporal influences on the disease's prevalence.