Dear Mrs Christianah Ajayi and Mr Victor Olukayode Ogunro,

This is a little recommendation from me: The abstract and introduction must contain information about the problem being studied. You better add why the factors influencing health and safety programs in selected electricity distribution companies in South West Nigeria are important to research. You can add data or anything related to problems in the company's health and safety programs in the Southwest State. An example is in the literature review, referring to the sentence "The central tenet of Human Factors Theory, that most accidents are caused by human error, is supported by empirical data. Approximately 72% to 91% of all industrial accidents are thought to be caused by human error," to strengthen why you chose this research. Overall, the writing is good and systematic.
