

Review of: "Factors contributing to labour unrest at the garment factories in Bangladesh: A cross-sectional study"

Pramod Pathak

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article is comprehensively written and methodology is quite rigorous. The authors have taken care to review relevant literature literature and the conclusions have been logically drawn. Discussion is based on appropriate statistical analysis and takes care of the requirements of the research. However, relevant international literature could have added more value to the paper. But that does not affect the merit of the paper. It is a good work worthy of publication.