The paper deals with the daylighting issue in a residence located in New Delhi. In general, the paper is very brief. It is insufficient asr just one sentence for the Introduction. The rationale to carry out such study should be elaborated with sufficient references. Literature review is inadequate and just one reference is cited. No descriptions are made for tables and figures. No particulars regarding the devices adopted for measurements are introduced. The number of measured data is not provided. There is only one sentence for the conclusion.
