

Review of: "Corralling a Chimera: A Critical Review of the Term Social Infrastructure"

Akhmad Kusuma Wardhana

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Abstract should added the objective of the study. The definition of social infrastructure was described well by the authors in the introduction section, including the development of terms of infrastructure used globally. However, this study has not explaining what was "chimera" of literature related to public transportation in introduction section. I recommend to read previous study about chimera literature entitled "Hunting down the chimera of multiple disciplinarity in conservation science"

The methodology was quite robust and explaining on how scrutinizing te papers gathered into samples. This study also explained wellthe concept of social infrastructure in discussion section about core categories of literatures related to social infrastructure. Public policiy related to social infrastrcuture for specific purpose also has been described neatly. It could be good to elaborate more study than can compare between public policy in developing and in modern countries.