

Review of: "The Catholic School: Dualistic Learning Superseded"

Audrei Rodrigo da Conceição Pizolati¹

¹ Unisinos University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The reference author is Lonergan and the theme lies in the analysis of the challenges of religious teaching. It could split and make two articles, or rewrite title, abstract and methodology, as well as revise parts of the text and bring the focus to an analysis of the challenges of a religious education according to Lonergan's thinking. Another point would be to go a little deeper into Paulo Freire's studies, especially regarding solidary and community education, configuring the parallel with religion as an educational practice. I believe that would be the point of adjustment of the article. Therefore, I suggest the following title for the study: The Challenges of Religious Education from the Perspective of Bernard Lonergan.