Thank you for addressing the previous comments and making the necessary amendments to the article. Upon re-evaluating the revised version, I can see improvements in the introduction, where more relevant references have been incorporated, and the methodology section now provides greater clarity on participant selection. The corrections to the citation in Section 2.5 have also been made appropriately. Overall, the article demonstrates enhanced clarity and depth, with a more cohesive discussion of the findings. I believe the article now merits a higher score and provides a more robust contribution to the field.
