

Review of: "Procurement Planning & the Rwanda Biomedical Centre (RBC)"

Alina Iuliana Tăbîrcă¹

¹ Valahia University of Targoviste

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This study examines procurement planning's impact on public institutions' performance using Rwanda Biomedical Centre (RBC) as a case study. Some issues must be well taken into consideration. To enhance the research methodology, it would be beneficial to include a testable hypothesis. Additionally, it could be helpful to improve the data validation process. As for the interview information, I believe it would be advantageous to gather more data to ensure a comprehensive understanding of the topic. The findings of the study have not been subjected to critical review. It is crucial to evaluate the results of the study rigorously to ensure their validity and reliability. Additionally, the study must highlight the novelty and significance of its findings to demonstrate its contribution to the field. By doing so, the study can establish its importance and relevance to the scientific community.

Upon reviewing the document, I noticed that there is a lack of descriptions available for all the figures and tables that have been presented. This could potentially make it difficult for readers to understand the data being presented and the context in which it is being used. It is recommended to provide descriptions for all figures and tables to ensure that the information is easily comprehensible and accessible to the readers.

Thank you!