In the present paper, Muhamad Hanif Rawi discussed the significance and medicinal potential of Rubus fraxinifolius: A Review of the Ragimot Wildberry.

Overall, I think that the paper is well organized, timely, and it could be of interest to readers and researchers, in general.

I have only a few comments to address carefully to improve the quality of the paper.

In light of the nutritional composition obtained in the present study, please discuss, deeply, the possible application of these compounds as nutraceuticals/functional foods in humans.

Some minor corrections and also some references are missing and have been highlighted in the PDF version.
