

Review of: "[Commentary] Postpartum Depression: An Invisible Distress in the United Kingdom"

Mohammadali Emamhadi¹

¹ Shahid Beheshti University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Dear Dr

I read your article and enjoyed raising a serious and very important problem for at least half of the community. It seems that this problem is important and fundamental, and policy makers should pay serious attention to it.

You described the problem well and opened it effectively. You used scientific references well to clarify this problem. You also provided solutions.

But it would be better to talk about the inability of previous solutions to control the situation before offering a new solution. To be clear, you have to provide sufficient reasons for the inability of the current solutions by referring to some articles. Also, some of the solutions provided by you are general. In my opinion, it is better to write solutions more clearly and specifically, and if they have already been tested, write their useful results.

In addition, you must clearly point out that your proposed solutions have not yet been implemented or have been implemented incompletely.

In general, and considering the importance of the case, your article can be interesting and worthy of attention. I look forward to your next articles.

Sincerely,

Muhammad Ali