Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article refers to the epidemiological survey of patients who went to the Bule Hora University Hospital in Ethiopia. Check acronyms; these must be written in full. It is important to add a map of the region, the location of families, or patients in the study. In other words, the area of study. We recommend that the tables be divided by lines between each item to make them more understandable and easier to read. The conclusion is well written and indicates directions for further studies.
