

Review of: "Unpacking Snowflake: How a Data Cloud Company is Ruling the Roost"

Gemma Mollevi

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This document is not a scientific article, but a simple description of a company. It would be necessary to transform this work in its entirety with the following structure:

- Introduction. Indicating the hypotheses and the objective of the work, in addition to the geographical and sectoral framework. Make an executive summary of the company.
- Conceptual framework: Based on the bibliographical references, make a state of the art of the sector in question, the points for and against and the contribution of this type of business. The number of articles consulted must be increased, since it is quite weak.
- Methodology: How this study was carried out? From what other work models has this been carried out?
- Results: Either with a table or with graphs, indicate and show the results of the study.
- Discussion: based on the results and the theoretical framework, establish general and specific indications of the situation of the company and the sector. What does this company contribute to the sector?
- Conclusions: in general, answer the hypothesis and the objectives. Mark future lines of work or the use that can be given to this work, that is, the contribution to the scientific world
- Bibliography: improve and expand the bibliographical references.
- Format: make argumentative paragraphs and not so structured.