

Review of: "[Commentary] #BetterPoster: The gateway to accessible science"

Raquel Espinosa Castañeda¹

¹ Universidad Autónoma de San Luis Potosí

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The #BetterPoster initiative is a topic of permanent relevance, in which as you mentioned universal design for inclusion could be implemented. However, in the article, it is missing to relate the interaction with the #BetterPoster design and the universal design for the better information understanding of people with visual impairment. In addition, since there are several billboards, it is important to measure which one is the most functional and effective for people with visual disabilities. Please give more information on how universal design and user experience design was used on the #BetterPoster, and how was it measured. It would be expected to find/read crucial aspects of the methodological development, such as the analysis variables, as well as the research techniques.