

Review of: "Knowledge, Practices and Attitude of Residents towards Buruli Ulcer in Jasikan Municipality: An Ethnographic Study"

Suzanne Abdelmalek¹

¹ University of Petra

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Dear Sir

The article "Knowledge, Practices and Attitude of Residents towards Buruli Ulcer in Jasikan Municipality: An Ethnographic Study" discusses the perceptions of residents of Jasikan municipality about the Buruli ulcer disease. The results are quite interesting. However the manuscript needs additions to be suitable for publication. The introduction is very short did not address the disease, its prevalence in Ghana. why this municipality was chosen for the study? the background of the population, the geography and climate of the area in question. Other studies performed in other places in the world.

Results: I expected to see numbers in the themes and subthemes meaning that how many people belonged to each main theme or sub theme. Why females were more than males? Was the interview followed by an educational session? The study excluded residents with wounds who were seriously ill. Why is this an exclusion criterion?

Discussion: "witchcraft can be used to inflict others with Buruli Ulcer" is this a fact ? kindly explain how is this possible?