

Review of: "The HERMESS model for addictive behaviors recovery"

Austin Brown¹

¹ Syracuse University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I would agree with the other reviewers that the limits of this article are not the content but the incomplete sentences, however, this article does have some merit and may be an important piece of contributing literature to the discussion of treatment and treatment systems for SUD.

One point I would like the authors to note is the theoretical or definitional points of contact between the CMESS and the HERMESS model. I would further suggest that they authors seems familiar enough with both to suggest a synthesis between the two for further research and/or in the discussion section.