

Review of: "A Bibliometric Review of CSR in China Based on CNKI Database: 2006-2022"

Rangarajan Krishnamachari¹

¹ Indian Institute of Foreign Trade

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article on, " A Bibliometric Review of CSR in China Based on CNKI Database: 2006-2022", was reviewed by me. I found that it is apt and relevant in the context of china indicating the evolution of CSR concept over the period of time and the importance given by firms in the recent times. It has analysed the papers using the important words/works related to CSR activities. It is suggested that the authors could have used words like SDG and ESG also as they are becoming more popular in the context of sustainability. Moreover, instead of just doing a word count analysis the authors could have used the research methodology adopted in the papers, constructs used etc which could give more ideas to the researchers interested in the area for consolidating their research outcomes and references.