

Review of: "Agritourism: a source for socio-economic transformation in developing economies"

Ary Widiyanto

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This paper is quite interesting and succeeds in providing a new perspective on agritourism.

There are some of my comments about this paper, which I convey globally:

1. The abstract does not mention the research method. Even though this is a review paper, it needs to mention how you took the data and analyzed it.
2. Introduction section is too short. You can explain your research position on agritourism here. You must also provide research problems related to agritourism in Zimbabwe and what will be answered from these problems.
3. The conceptual frame section is quite good and comprehensive
4. Agritourism worldwide can be made more interesting, for example, by making a table, compared between countries and the advantages and disadvantages of each.