While the Manuscript seeks to link the relationship between risk factors and incidence of occurrences of reproductive risks , the rigor of the methodology used is not clearly showing this relationship , rather the authors concentrated on reporting the incidences . The study utilized a survey which only generated qualitative data , however the authors used a quantitative method to analyze the data, this might be disturbing. Again the sources of variation considered in the study were not fully described . The abstract is not a succinct description of the study . The introduction does not show clearly the problem being addressed. In the results section units are missing.
