

Review of: "A Review of Prosody, Punctuation, and Dyslexia: Implications for the Use of Speech Technologies"

Plinio Barbosa

Potential competing interests: The author(s) declared that no potential competing interests exist.

The paper summarizes and points out the potential relevance of automatic tools for helping dyslexic persons. The authors focus on the relation between explicit prosody and punctuation. I added some comments in the PDF documents in the form of notes. Some terms and experimental procedures reviewed could benefit of additional information. Overall, it is a good paper that will be useful for people aiming at developing research and/or developing tools and protocols for helping dyslexic people.