

Review of: "Factors contributing to labour unrest at the garment factories in Bangladesh: A cross-sectional study"

Sarni Maniar Berliana

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This paper discusses factors contributing to labor unrest at the garment factories in Bangladesh. Several research has been done on labor unrest, but I find this paper still interesting because it can provide an up-to-date picture of labor unrest in Bangladesh and the factors that influence it based on the latest data. Here are suggestions regarding this manuscript.

1. There has actually several research on labor unrest in the GRM sector in Bangladesh, therefore the authors need to explain the differences between this study and previous similar studies.
2. In Table 5 the authors present the regression coefficients and their 95% CI for 5 models. However, the values of the regression coefficients and their 95% CI for model 4 and 5 are exactly the same. I found that there are no differences in the independent variables included in model 4 and 5. Thus, model 5 should be removed.
3. It is better to write citations according to basic format (e.g. APA style), i.e., the author's last name and the year of publication.

Good luck.