

Review of: "Generating Smart Goals of Engineering Education Institutes in the Fast-Developing Countries"

Sameh Monna¹

¹ An-Najah National University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Interesting topic, however, it has many basic research shortcomings.

The literature review should focus on the previous studies (research articles) rather than what other universities considers in their strategic plans only. The author should articulate the gap based on these previous studies and articulate the contribution of the paper.

The presented paper is informative rather than providing research methods and results.

The methodology used is not quite clear, the author should address a specific work methodology on how and why to use the literature surveys and the questionnaires.

The results are not sufficiently presented and discussed.