Some notes to consider:

1. In the abstract, it is best to explain the type of research used, whether qualitative or quantitative. Next, the data collection method is explained, so that reading the abstract is the same as reading or understanding all the research results
2. After the introduction, then there is the second part, namely a description of the research methodology, followed by a discussion by showing the advantages and disadvantages of economic practice in the business environment and what strategies are suitable for development and then a description of the conclusions.
