The article is well-written and easy to follow. However, the author needs to further develop the section about the digitalization effort in Bangladesh. For instance, what are the materials prioritized for digitalization? What are the equipment used and how effective are they. In addition, there should be information on the volume of materials eligible for digitization, the percentage that have been digitized, and the volume left to be digitized. Such information will definitely paint a clearer picture of the digitization effort in Bangladeshi. it will also provide useful information for countries in similar situation on how to proceed with their digitization efforts
