

Review of: "A Case for Nature in Long-Haul Space Exploration"

Martin Braddock

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article is clearly and succinctly written. It could be improved upon by including olfactory stimuli in addition or distinct from virtual/augmented reality simulations. In instances where colonies are to be established and built upon, the thinking around environment specific landscape architecture warrants discussion, especially as it may utilise features not commonplace on Earth and contribute to the ambience of such unique environment.