The author presented the manuscript in a well-planned way. The title "Ameliorating the Impact of Climate Variability on Pesticide Dynamics and Efficacy" matches perfectly with the literature and discussion of the paper. However, there are some areas that should be considered. The introduction of the manuscript could be shorter in length, too much information was in the introduction chapter. The introduction part can be more specific. The literature review was well written, and the information presented here was aligned with this topic. The conclusion part was written in a more concise way relating to the main scope of this study. Figures and tables were also presented in an organized way. Some sophisticated statistical analysis can easily be added here. Overall, it would be a good piece of work if the above-mentioned issues are taken care of.
