In the Results and Discussion sections of the article (especially in the first part), recommendations are listed. Since it is an article intended to be developed in a review style, it is appropriate to make such suggestions. However, I suggest a systematization for the Results section. For example, this could be a Systematic Review article, which has its own methodology. If you want to write an article in the style of a classic review, sub-titles should be presented and discussed in the results section. Since this is the research question (How can community service be reoriented in language education to produce unbiased, inclusive, and transformational learning experiences that enable learners to use language for social change in their communities?) An independent Recommendations section could be added at the end or after the Conclusion.
