

Review of: "Sociodemographic Factors and Parental Verbal Abuse in Indonesia"

Wu Chiachun

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This study discussed the relationship between parental abuse and socio-demographic factors. 225 students were used as participants. The following is my personal opinion:

1. It explained the impact of parental violence on children in the introduction, but it didn't explain the relationship between parents' socio-demographic background and violence. The motivation for this study was not available.
2. What about the 225 participants' background? How much influence did parents have on the participants if the people who actually raised them were not their parents?
3. What is the research hypothesis of this study? Or is it just to explain the phenomenon?
4. What is the operational definition of verbal violence? Is it based on students' subjective perception?
5. The research method was not rigorous enough, and there was a possibility of excessive inference.