Thank you very much. It looks like a very interesting study.

My recommendations:

1-) You can add more information about the methodology of the study in the abstract.

2-) You can write the abstract more concisely. Some sentences may not be necessary in the abstract.

You can mention it only in the methods section.

For example:

The internal consistency was almost perfect (Cronbach's $\alpha = .99$).

3-) You can add a reference for the following sentence:

Androgenetic alopecia in men is a specific form of hair loss with a distinctive progression and an extraordinarily high prevalence.

4-) Be careful about punctuation errors in the manuscript. There are unnecessary „

ars. It „typically begins with a bi-temporal recession of the frontal hairline, followed by a thinning of ha

5-) References in the manuscript should be consistent.
