First of all, congratulations on the manuscript; it is a novel and very interesting research topic.

However, there are some aspects that require a little more attention:

1.- At the end of the introduction section, the situation in the United Kingdom is discussed; I recommend that, when describing intervention programs, more currently cited articles or documents should appear (the citation that appears is dated 2002).

2.- Regarding the review of meta-analyses, something similar happens. Is this because there are no more recent articles on "cognitive behavior-based therapy," or because the search for articles has not been able to find more manuscripts with information for the meta-analysis?; Please add this information to clarify the current situation on this topic.

Overall, this is a potentially publishable manuscript. Although there are references to recent articles, my recommendation is to add some more references that are published between 2021-2023 (mainly in the sections discussed above). Thus, the current situation will be much more enriched.

Again, congratulations.
