I really enjoyed this topic, it deals with both sustainable development and gender gap issues. So here are my suggestions:

Introduction. - There are large paragraphs with a single reference. Some sentences are quite long and contain several ideas. So, break down complex sentences into smaller, more concise statements to improve readability and ensure understanding and clarity.

Statistics.

In the reliability test (Cronbach's Alpha), there is only one result, even if there are 6 variables (5 exogenous and 1 endogenous).

Also, the entrepreneurship training variable requires mentioning the sampling technique.

Recommendations

It is better to change the name recommendations to practical implications

Also discuss the practical implications of your findings for the field, businesses, and policymakers.

Overall, this manuscript deserves publication with minor revisions
