

Review of: "Foucault 40 years later – an intimate history"

M.C.O. de Landázuri<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Universidad de Navarra

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article is a reconstruction of Foucault from the readings the author has made over the years. It is an interesting genealogical approach from a methodological point of view, although it would be interesting to know if the author questions Foucault's work at any point. After all, Foucault is often partial in his use of sources and adopts a less than neutral approach in his approach to them.