

Review of: "Measuring the Effectiveness of Internship Programs in Aligning Education with Industry: A Comprehensive Analysis of Internship Outcomes in the College of Communication and Media During COVID-19"

Mohd Ajmal¹

¹ Aligarh Muslim University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The paper adds valuable empirical evidence to existing literature. The methodology and introduction are well-structured. However, due to a small sample size and specific context, generalizing the results may not be appropriate, especially considering the unique specifications of the location where the study was conducted. The findings provide valuable insights into the efficacy of the university's training modules and the translation of education into professional settings. The study's focus on "reaction" and "learning" constructs offers a comprehensive evaluation of the internships' impact. Overall, this research contributes significantly to understanding the role of internships in bridging academic knowledge with real-world applications.