

Review of: "Assessing Sex Education Awareness Among Higher Secondary School Students in India"

Sandra Monteiro¹

¹ SRM University, Andhra Pradesh

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The theme of the manuscript is of utmost relevance in today's day and age. An extensive sample has been recruited to determine the outcome of the study, however it is not clear how random sampling was achieved. The study employs descriptive analysis to put forward the results obtained which can be said to be fairly representative. Extensive analysis of the qualitative responses from the participants is not explained. The questionnaire includes essential verbatim in assessing awareness levels in the sample. The flow of manuscript is has simplistic structure and at the same time requires in-depth analysis of current literature in this area. The recommendations and conclusion are repetitive and unnecessarily elaborate the length of the paper. The paper can be a commendable if reworked upon with more nuanced academic rigor.